MARKET OVERVIEW

Pre Open Thoughts: A better day...life goes on

Well coming back to markets after a long weekend Dalal Street will also be back to business. The market is set to open on a positive note with weekend global cues paving the way as Market sentiment seems to be improving.

On Asian front Japanese stocks led a retreat in Asian equities as the yen strengthened following the release of data showing Asia's second-largest economy shrank last quarter. Oil and copper declined, while gold advanced before China releases February trade figures.

Back home the frenzied broad based buying support led to incessant short-covering which helped the Nifty move above the 7400 mark.

On Nifty as written last week where in confidence will be seen above 7350 but on the upside 7650 still remains a major hurdle. At the same time 7350 now remains to be downside support. On the whole, there may be seen that main indices may trade in a tight trading band with a slightly positive bias in the near term.

Fund flows have been an important factor to watch out for and after a long time, FIIs have turned net buyers in the cash and derivatives segments. DIIs continued to support the markets and remained net buyers during the week. The breadth of the market remained robust amidst higher volumes, which is a positive sign on commodity front Crude prices closed at about US$ 37.29/barrel, up 5%, during last week.
